

Abstract of the Disclosure

Nucleic acid sequences are provided that are useful as amplification primers and hybridization probes for amplifying and detecting target sequence from the β 2 adrenergic receptor gene. The primers and probes can be employed in amplification based methods for detecting the presence of the target sequence in a test sample.

09542718-040400